The rivalry between the University of Southern California students and those of Pomona College has heightened interest in the field-day exercises which will be held February 22. Pomona has already selected its material from the successful winners in the trials held a week ago.

Yesterday the U.S.C. candidates for team honors were tried out and, though the track was slow and the grounds slippery, some good scores were made.

Here are the victors in yesterday's trials, who will be the U.S.C. standard-bearers: One-hundred-yard dash, Woodward, Miller; running high jump, Miller, Broderon; 440-yard dash, Woodward, Smith; pole vault, Knowles, Enyeart; 120-yard hurdle, Broderon, Ward; mile dash, Smith, Wilson; shot put, Ferguson, Broderon; broad jump, Miller, Enyeart; relay team, Ferguson, Smith, Woodward, Miller.

Interest in the field trials was so keen that hundreds of college lads and many of the fairer sex sat in the cold during the afternoon, cheering the contestants to their best endeavors.

The first event, the 100-yard dash, was won by Ray Woodward; Edwin Miller second; time 11s. This is one second faster than the time made by Pomona.

In the high jump Miller made only five feet. Both first and second places in this event will go to Pomona, as Wharton has a record of 5 feet 10 inches, and Gowan recently made 5 feet 7½ inches.

The 440-yard run was won by Woodward in 58s, Smith second. Pomona's time was 55 3-5s.

In the pole vault, Knowles and Enyeart tied for first place, making 9 feet 4 inches. First and probably second place in this event will go to the Methodist collegians.

Smith easily won the mile, making a splendid sprint at the finish; time 5m. 23s. Adams and Hinckley of Pomona are probably the best men for the distance in Southern California, both men having made the distance in 4m. and 42s.

The next event was the shot put, which was won by Ferguson, who threw a 17½-pound shot 35 feet, 6 inches. The regulation shot only weighs 16 pounds, so the put was equal to about 38 feet. It is predicted that this will easily win first place in the big meet, as Pomona's best man has not done better than 34 feet.

The most sensational event of the day was the 220-yard dash, which was won by Woodward in 23¾s.

Miller won the broad jump, making 21 feet 10 inches. This is another event which promises to be very close in the intercollegiate contests, although Miller won the event last year handily.

The last event was a one-half-mile relay race between two picked teams. The time was 1m. 53s. Pomona's time a week ago was 1m. 48s.

The relay may be the decisive event in the big meet, as it counts five points. Both schools are confident of winning it, and the best men in each institution will save themselves as much as possible for the struggle.

The officials at yesterday's trials were Logan Wheatley, clerk of course; Charles Holland, starter; L. S. Enyeart, timer; James Page, herald.
