

TROJAN TEAM FAVORED TO COP CHAMPIONSHIP

Nation's Best Athletes Threaten All-Time Marks in Trials at Coliseum Before 20,000

BY BRAVEN DYER

Insured of a record-breaking finale by reason of spectacular performances yesterday, the N.C.A.A. track and field championships come to an end at the Coliseum this afternoon and if you are foolish enough to pass up a peek at this great athletic event don't come around crying about it later. You've been warned what to expect.

As a result of what happened during the preliminaries the Trojans of Southern California find themselves this morning in the position of favorites to annex the team title which Louisiana State so rudely snatched from them a year ago at Chicago.

The accompanying dope sheet shows how Dean Cromwell's lads can score 57 points merely by doing as well today as they did yesterday. Providing Bud Deacon hits his best form in the pole vault, Stanford should grab second honors over L.S.U., despite setbacks yesterday when Allen Blackman, I.C.A.-A. champion, failed to qualify for either the 440 or 320.

So in addition to watching a flock of feverish fellows shatter several records today you will also be privileged to witness a pulse-quickenng struggle between three great teams for the championship. Don't go near the place if your heart is weak—unless you have a hankering to be pushing up daisies from a horizontal position within the next few days.

So keen was yesterday's competition that some of the finest athletes in the land will not be privileged to take part today. But enough of the best are left to insure some of the most sensational races seen here since the Olympic Games.

The Trojans now occupy the driver's seat by dint of qualifying for thirteen places today. Eleven athletes did this, Foy Draper and Charles Parsons adding two more places by getting into the finals of both sprints.

Stanford is next with eight, and L.S.U. had five qualifiers, Glenn Hardin alone doubling up by winning heats in both the quarter-mile and low hurdles. He ranks as a heavy favorite to win the one-lap dash today, but faces terrific competition from three rivals in the abbreviated barriers.

The boys set a dizzy pace yesterday. Qualifying marks were so far superior to those in last year's meet at Chicago as to be almost unbelievable and is explained by the great wealth of high class athletes competing.

Perhaps the outstanding effort of the day was that uncorked by Al Olson, allm broad-jumper from the University of Southern California. Hurling through space with the speed of a cannonball, the Trojan leaper cleared 25ft. 4 1/4-in. to lead a field of ten select qualifiers by almost a full foot.

His jump was the best ever made in the Coliseum, even exceeding Ed

TROJANS MEET FAVORITES

Southern California Has Edge Over Louisiana State and Stanford in Track Finals Today

Gooden's winning leap of 267, 1-4in. in the 1922 Olympic Games. It is extremely unlikely that Bob Clark of California, the favorite, will be able to improve his second-place mark of 247, 42-4in, enough to challenge Gooden's position.

Last year at Chicago the best qualifying broad jump mark was 247, 42-4in., almost a foot behind that made by Glenn yesterday.

An anticipated Jack Torrance of Louisiana and John Lyman of Stanford staged a thunderous battle in the shot put, but much to the surprise of the southern delegation, the robust Kentucky came off with top honors. His mighty heave of 328, 71-4in., was less than an inch better than that made by Torrance, who is in second position with an effort of 326, 71-4in.

These marks shattered the N.C.A.A. record of 325, 71in., made by Torrance a year ago, but fell below what both boys have done on previous occasions this season. Lyman has hit 341, while Torrance did 327, 1-1/2in. The greatest chap from these ought to beat Lyman today, but whether he will turn the trick depends on how much he is going to be bothered by the fact that his rival is out there ahead of him. They get eight heaves today, as against only four yesterday. The first five men in the shot heaved last year's qualifying mark at Chicago, which was 327, 7in. by Houston Starver of A.C., who faces a fight to grab off a single digit today where he was second a year ago.

Kenneth Carpenter, huge Trojan discus star, helped the A.C. cause tremendously by grabbing the first qualifying place in his specialty with the best effort of his brief career—322, 9 1-4in.

Carpenter finds himself in this position, not only because of his great competitive spirit, but also because some of the visitors, boasting better marks than Ken's, were unable to come up to expectations. There are no less than four men in the finals today who have thrown the discus more than 320ft., and Mike Zoni, who didn't even qualify, had been spinning the platter 320ft. in practice. So Carpenter may not wind up the winner but he's going to be no worse than second or third—which will be a shock to a couple of stage I know who said the boy wouldn't even qualify.

Singer Dunn of Stanford, Hugh Cannon of Brigham Young, Chester Cwikichank of Colorado State and John Hensley of Harvard are the four qualifiers who have better seasonal marks than Carpenter. But Dunn, with a toss of 326, 1 1-4in., was the only one of the quartet to exceed 320ft. yesterday.

Another far western athlete, Bob Fiske of Oregon, established the other N.C.A.A. record of the day (Lyman's was the first) when he heaved the javelin 329, 11 1-4in. Lee Hartless of Albion College set the old record of 329, 10, five years ago.

The other javelin favorites, John Mottram of Stanford and Heiston Legore of North Carolina, are in second and third place, respectively, but it will take a superhuman effort if either is to surpass Parke's mark. Bill Belsa of U.C.L.A. got off the best peg of his life and is in fourth position with a throw of 329, 1-4in.

So much for the field events—and now to the track, where many a heart-breaking finish coaxed a yards of a chance to compete in the finals today. The field was so large and so clayey that only those men could qualify in the 440, 800 and 1000 yard heats, while the tank was even tougher in the hurdles, where but two athletes in each heat made the grade.

TWO SPRINTS

The quarter-mile races, three of them, produced only two shocks—great, of course, being the failure of Blackman to qualify. Second was Harry Tuspinas of A.C. getting only fourth in his heat, being shut out by Louis Brothers of Rice Institute. Tuspinas had to expend a lot of energy getting out of a box down the straightaway and Brothers had more steam at the finish.

Because of his marvelous running yesterday, Hardin raises the favorite's position in the quarter-mile finals today. In fact, the southern experts anticipate that Glenn will run the race in something like 48 seconds flat. He turned in the fastest time yesterday, 48.2s., and was merely bowling along at a comfortable clip, showing no effort or strain at any point during the race.

Rummy LuVelle capped the opening heat in 48.1s., with John McCarthy of his elbow, but the Bruin star appeared tired and did not have his usual finish. This may be an erroneous impression, but Hardin looked so much stronger yesterday that it is hard to conceive of him being today.

Ivan Payne of Indiana hit the tape first in the third heat, and his time was 48.4s. He looks good for no worse than third today and may be able to nip LuVelle for second honors.

The Trojans are well fortified in this final today, having three of the nine men in the finals. In some order, McCarthy, Ed Abbott and Al Pugh should grab the last three places, which means 7 points. McCarthy ran easily and if he repeats today may move up beyond fourth position in the grand final.

There was no great surprise in the spring other than the feat of Stanford's Jimmy Wilson, a late entry, in qualifying for both century and furlong.

There were plenty of excited spectators among the crowd of 28,000 fans when Wilson beat Draper in the tape in the opening heat of the 100-yard dash. The time of 8.6s., indicated that Draper will have a hard time getting a single point today, but he can run better than he did yesterday, when his start was not up to his usual standard.

Ralph Metcalfe, as predicted right from the start, is the chap to beat in both races. He won his heats comfortably in 8.8s. and 11.2s. Nobody bettered his century mark and his time in the furlong was a tenth of a second faster than that recorded by Sterling Dupree of Auburn in beating Ferris Walker of Georgia Tech, who did not appear as formidable as his records from the South had painted him.

Draper had the slowest time, 11.8s., winning over Hal of Kansas, who, in turn, was too good for Powers of Denver University.

LEG ODER

Metcalfe stated last night that the leg injury which has handicapped him this season did not bother him to any great extent yesterday and that he is hoping for the best today, when he will naturally have to "gear it on" a bit more.

Not by way of an alibi, but Draper made one false start in the hundred and was very cautious about starting too quickly when his heat in the 100 finally got under way. This probably explains why he did not occupy his customary position among the leaders at the thirty-yard mark.

Blackman tried to qualify in the furlong, but lost out just as he did in the 440, when he slowed down to a walk after making a bid to get up with the leaders 100 yards from the tape.

Charles Parsons did some fine running for the Trojans in both sprints and Coach Crosswell is thus well fortified with two boys in each race. Parsons gave Metcalfe a battle in the 100 and also ran right with the great returned sprinter in the furlong.

I thought that the two midwestern entries, Ed Hall of Kansas and Hunter Russell of Illinois were both most impressive. One or both may move up ahead of Draper today, and Metcalfe himself insists that the outcome of both sprints is a moot question.

HURDLES HEARTBREAKERS

The hurdles were heartbreakers for many a boy. Kenneth Sandbeck of Purdue, for instance, missed by inches qualifying for the finals in the low, but got into the high. Gray Williams of Pomona was running right with the leaders in his high-hurdle heat, but sprawled all over the track after hitting the next to last obstacle. After making the grade in the high, Sam Klopstock of Stanford passed out of the picture in the low, missing his step midway in the race and falling to finish.

For my dough this boy Sam Allen from Oklahoma should win the high today, but will have plenty of trouble from both Klopstock and George Fisher of L.S.U. Allen and Klopstock recorded the fastest time in winning their heats, 14.6s.

The big surprise of the high timers was Ned Bacon of Denison University, Ohio, who won his heat in 14.8s., against such big shots as Fisher and Sandbeck. Bacon will bear watching today as will Amador Oliver of Miami University, Ohio, however, looks like a better bet in the low. He won his heat in 15.8s., and led the last half of the race.

RAY LAMBERTUS!

Waye Lambertus of Nebraska turned in the fastest low hurdle record, 21.6s., while Vincent Reed of Occidental was only a tenth of a second slower in taking the fourth heat with Hardin second. Although Hardin, as defending champ, is still favored in this event, it looks like a wide-open race with Lambertus, Reed and Oliver all capable of hitting the tape first.

Ed Hall of the Trojans topped the third heat, but was credited with the slowest time, 14.1s.

It appears to be about time to tap something about the three half-mile heats, particularly inasmuch as that great Kansas miler, Glenn Cunningham, stepped on the track for the first time since setting his new world's record of 4m. 4.7s. last week.

Glenn turned on the heat only once yesterday. This was 100 yards from the finish of the second 800 heat when he jumped it up a bit and then coasted to the tape a winner in 1m. 24.4. William Knox of Ohio State, and Earl Johnson of the Trojans followed him to the ribbon.

Charles Hershbell, defending champion, paced the distance in the fastest time of the day, 1m. 52.8s., to beat Elroy Robinson of Fresno State and Bill Ray of Manhattan.

Jimmy Miller, made over by Harry Trotter from a hurdler, was the other heat winner for the half-

Track Meet on the Air

A detailed word picture of the N.C.A.A. track and field championships at the Coliseum this afternoon will be carried over station KMTN, starting at 2 p.m. Seven Dyer of The Times sports department and Frank Bull will conduct the broadcast.

TOUGH TO PICK

It's hard to decide between Cunningham and Hershbell today. Particularly when one must take into account the fact that Glenn will run the mile before he takes part in the 800 final. No one can get into the mental make-up of an athlete, so I can't tell you what is going to happen in the half. That is up to Cunningham—if he wants to win both races he will probably do just that.

A flock of new athletes will be on exhibition today and it is a cliché that more records will fall. No miler, two-milers, high jumpers, pole vaulters or hammer throwers appeared yesterday. So there are the brand new events in addition to the ten previewed yesterday.

The high jump duel between Walter Marty and George Spita promises an end of competition, while the first western appearance of Bill Southorn, Princeton's great miler, should bring out a horde of fans. Bill is not the kind of young man to lay down and die just because somebody looked him, and he stayed out of the 800 in order to give Cunningham the battle of his life in the mile this afternoon.
