Sanford Seeks a Record, Asks Help From the Wind

SEATTLE—It seems that it is only a matter of time before USC's James Sanford breaks the world record in the 100 meters.

The Trojan senior has been exceptionally sharp the past few weeks in pursuit of Jimmy Hines' world mark of 9.95 set at Mexico City in the 1968 Olympic Games.

Sanford ran a wind-aided 9.88 in the USC-UCLA dual, then a 10.03 in the UCLA-Pepsi Invitational and a hand-timed 10 flat in a meet in Trinidad.

His times weren't that impressive (for him) in the 100 and 200 trials of the Pacific 10 track and field meet Friday night at Husky Stadium, but he was eased up in both sprints and still clocked 10.39 and 21.06. Moreover, he was running into a head wind.

"I'm loose and feeling better than ever," Sanford said. "If the wind dies down tomorrow (the finals), who knows? I like this track (a Chavelle surface). It's a fast one."

Sanford, the world's No. 1 ranked sprinter in 1979, is apparently in a class by himself this year. He could be pushed by UCLA's Greg Foster, the defending NCAA 200 champion, in today's 200 finals, but UCLA Coach Jim Bush doesn't want Foster to make an all-out effort.

"I've almost begged Greg not to go after Sanford in the 200," Bush said. "I told him to let Sanford get his 10 points (first place) and that eight points (second) is a lot of points. But I don't know if he's going to go along with me."

Foster, the best high hurdler in the world now that Renaldo Nehemiah is recovering from an ankle injury, hasn't worked out much recently. He is favoring his right leg that he injured a month ago.

So Bush doesn't want Foster to strain himself while trying to beat Sanford, risking a permanent injury that would keep him out of the NCAA meet June 5-7 at Austin, Tex.

Foster, like Sanford, was eased up in winning his heats in the 110-meter high hurdles (13.75) and 200 (20.85). He was literally under wraps because he was wearing leotards.

Bush bought several pairs of leotards Friday morning for his runners to wear to protect them against possible cold weather. The temperature was in the 60s when the meet began late in the afternoon, but when the sun went down and the wind came up, it became chilly.

There were no startling developments in the first day of competition and Bush said his favored Bruins were right on schedule. However, he figures that Oregon, not USC, will be his primary challenger for the team title today.

The Trojans got a setback before the meet began when sprinter Billy Mullins was declared ineligible because of an irregularity in his transcripts when he transferred from Rio Hondo College to USC in 1978.

And the Ducks were making a racket Friday. They went 1-2-3 in the shot put (24 points); Ken Martin won the 3,000-meter steeplechase as expected in the meet record time of 8:27.8 and Reidar Lorentzen took the javelin with a throw of 260-4.

But Bush apparently wasn't worried because Oregon's best point-getting events were Friday. UCLA figures to have its place in the sun today.

Oregon was the first day leader with 69 points followed by Washington State, 39; UCLA, 38; Stanford, 22, and USC 20.

In other final events held Friday, USC's Larry Doubly won the long jump (25-11 $\frac{3}{4}$) with teammate Kenny Hays second (25-3 $\frac{1}{2}$); Oregon's Tom Hintnaus was the pole vault winner, beating UCLA's Anthony Curran on fewer misses (both cleared 17-2 $\frac{3}{4}$); Stanford's Rick Buss won the hammer throw (211-5) and WSU's Samson Kimombwa ran away from UCLA's Steve Ortiz midway through the 10,000 to win in 28:39.2. Ortiz, who doesn't have much experience in the 10,000, was second in 28:58.0.

Doubly, who has been losing to Hays recently, was a bit brash when he said: "All my jumps were from behind the board. I'm a (Bob) Beamon (world record holder at 29-2 $\frac{1}{2}$) style jumper. I'm kind of inconsistent but when I get a hold of one, it's all over. And I haven't overpeaked like Kenny Hays said I did."
